PREFACE

This volume of the Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts deposited at Sri Vidyadhisha Sanskrit Manuscripts' Library, Dharwar (Mysore State) is being published under the Government of India's financial assistance scheme for publishing the Catalogues of Manuscripts in Sanskrit, Pāli, Prakrit, etc

Seven hundred and six manuscripts are described here. About three hundred of these belonged to the family collection of Sri K. T. Pandurangi and the rest were collected by him during the years 1948-60 from the Bombay Karnatak area (now forming the Belgaum Division in Mysore State) as his private collection. Sri Vidyadhisha Sanskrit Manuscripts Library was registered in 1961 and these manuscripts formed the nucleus of this Library. Soon after the work of publishing a catalogue of these MSS was undertaken which is now being issued.

This collection of Sanskrit MSS even though small, comprises of all important branches of Sanskrit literature, i. e. Veda, Dharmasātra, Purāna Darsana, etc. The number of MSS described under each of these heads is as under —

1 Vedic literature 25	8 Dvaita Vedānta 269
2 Smṛti and Nibandha 57	9 Bhakti literature 40
3 Itihāsa and Purāna 85	10 Tantra, Āgama etc. 14
4 Nyāya and Vaiśeṣika 66	11 Kāvya 62
5 Purvamiṃsa 16	12 Vyākaraṇa and Kosa 31
6 Advaita Vedānta 13	13 Prosody and Alankāra 9
7 Viśiṣṭādvaita 3	14 Jyotiṣa 16

The above manuscripts are described in this catalogue in a tabular form as per the scheme of cataloguing circulated by the Government of India. The details given under each column are explained below.

Col 1 The serial number and the subject are mentioned under this column. Major subject headings like Veda, Purāna etc. are given as section headings only, while under this column the particular subject treated in the work is mentioned so as to enable the reader to have an exact idea of the content of the work. If the work is a criticism of some other work or an abridgement of or a commentary on some other work, this fact is also mentioned. In regard to more important manuscripts about which further information is given in the appendix the letter 'E' is inserted to indicate that further 'Explanation' is given in the Appendix.

- Col 2 The Library Accession number is given here so as to enable the reader to locate the manuscript immediately on the shelf
- Col 3 The title of the work is mentioned here both in Roman and Devanāgarī scripts. The alternate title, if any, is given in the bracket. If the work is already printed, it is indicated with an asterisk.
- Col 4 & 5 The names of author and the commentator respectively are mentioned here
- Col 6 Material or substance viz whether the manuscript is written on paper or plam leaf is mentioned here. The letter 'P' indicates 'Paper'.
- Col 7 This column gives the script, 'D' indicates Devanagari
- Col 8 The size in centimetres, the total number of folios, lines per page, and the number of letters in each line are given here
- Col 9 The extent of the manuscript is mentioned here. 'C' indicates 'Complete' and 'Inc' indicates 'Incomplete'.
- Col 10 In case of the dated manuscripts, the saka or samvat are as given in the MS is mentioned here. In other cases an idea is given whether the manuscript is very old, old or recent. This is only a broad hint. A detailed examination of the each MS is necessary at the time of editing
- Col 11 Under this column all other particulars that are not covered in the earlier columns are given. The name of the scribe or the owner of MS, if any, references to other copies in other Manuscripts Libraries, if any, details of the missing folios, information given in the colophon, marginal remarks, and any other information that may be useful to the research scholar is given here. In regard to the MSS for which the letter 'E' is inserted under Col 1 this information is given in the Appendix

Out of the seven hundred and six manuscripts listed in the tabular form, seventy two manuscripts are annotated in the Appendix. The annotations include a brief note on the date and life of the author or commentator, reference to his other works, the special features of the work under review, the historical and literary information contained in the manuscript, quotations from and cross references to other works and such other information that may be useful for the research scholars. In addition, the beginning and the end are reproduced. The colophon and the post colophon remarks are also reproduced.

Copies of nearly half of the manuscripts listed in this catalogue are also available in other Manuscripts Libraries, particularly at Madras, Mysore, Tanjore and Baroda. The beginning and the end of these are produced in the Descriptive Catalogues of those Libraries. Therefore, single copy manuscripts and the manuscripts that are not described in those catalogues are given preference in selecting for annotation here

Apart from the Manuscripts specially selected for annotation, nearly about hundred works—big and small—are being brought to the notice of the scholars for the first time through this catalogue. These include four sub-commentories on the R̥gbhāṣya of Madhva, a few later works on Dharma-sāstra commentaries on portions of Mahābhārata, Harivamsa and other Purāṇas, a few compendiums and advanced Krodapatras on Tarka, some interesting stotras, a new commentary on a portion of Patanjali's Mahābhāṣya and a few Jyotisa works

The collections on Dvaita Vedānta deserve particular mention. The manuscripts of almost all important works on Dvaita Vedānta are brought together here for the first time. Comparatively older and well preserved manuscripts of all 37 works of Sri Madhva, all the commentaries of Jayatīrtha on Sri Madhva's works and several sub commentaries on Jayatīrtha's works are noticed here. A few works which were hitherto known only by references or tradition are brought to the notice of the scholars for the first time. Sri Narahaṇīrtha's commentary on Gitābhāṣya, Sri Vidyādhīrāja's commentary on Gitā, several newly traced commentaries on Tattvapraśāsikā and Daśa-prakaranaś, a few Upaniṣatkhaṇḍārthas, and a few works on Prameya or Dvaita theology which were so far not available are noticed here.

The nucleus of this collection started from the private collections of Pandurāṅgi family. Therefore, most of the works written by the members of the Pandurāṅgi family, viz., Ānandabhāṭṭāraka, Sri Vidyādhīśatīrtha Kesava bhāṭṭāraka and Ratnamālā Narasiṃhācārya and their disciples, particularly, Narasimhayati are preserved in this collection and noticed in this catalogue.

Besides adding the indices of works and authors as usual, a list of the scribes is also given. This, it is hoped, will be useful in many ways. In some MSS both the scribe and the date are mentioned while in others only the scribe is mentioned. In such cases wherever the scribe is common we can easily settle the date of both the MSS. The scribes sometimes mention the owner or the person under whose instructions the manuscript was copied and some times the name of the teacher for whose service the copying was made. A reference to the common scribe together with this information contained in one of the MSS will enable us to settle the date of even those MSS wherein merely the name of the scribe or the owner is mentioned. Similarly a reference to the scribe in one of the manuscripts which has a common hand writing with one or more others which mention the date is also useful. With these advantages in view, not only the scribes' names are mentioned under column II of the table but a consolidated list of the scribes is given at the

7. ऋभाष्यटिप्पणी (RGBHASYAṬIPPANĪ)

by AROGYA HARI

This is a sub commentary on Rgbhasya by Anandatīrtha alias Madhvācārya. Madhvācārya's Bhasya is the first available commentary on R̥gveda. He has proposed a scheme of three interpretations of Vedic hymns and has given the details of his scheme in the opening section of his Rgbhasya. This doctrine of threefold interpretation is actually worked out with reference to the first three Adhyayas of the first Astaka (Mandala I, Suktas 1 to 40). According to his interpretation not only the Upanisadic portions but even the Karmakāṇḍa portions speak of the Supreme Being, i e., Narayana. He views the whole of Veda as an essentially theosophic document. The three meanings of the hymns are (1) lauding of अग्नि etc. (ii) lauding of अमृत्यायन्तर्गताविष्णु (iii) अद्यात्म interpretation.

Jayatīrtha has commented upon Madhva's Rgbhasya. Following Jayatīrtha many have commented upon this work. As many as 18 commentaries are reported. Some of them are commentaries on Madhva's Rgbhasya closely following Jayatīrtha, while others are sub-commentaries on Jayatīrtha's commentary itself. This MS contains a commentary on Madhva's Rgbhasya closely following Jayatīrtha. Nothing could be ascertained about the commentator, i e., Ārogya Hari (son of Narasimha) either from this work or from any other source. No other manuscript of this work nor any other work of this commentator is reported.

8. ऋग्भाष्यटीकाविवृतिः (RĠBHĀSYATĪKĀVIVṚTI)

by RĀMACANDRABHIKṢU

This is a sub-commentary on Jayatīrtha's commentary on Rġbhāṣya of Madhvācārya. The commentator Rāmacandrabhikṣu (C. 1575-1635) was a distinguished Pontiff of the Vyāsarājamaṭha and fifth in succession from Vyāsarāja. He belonged to the Kambālu group of Southern Karnatak Brahmins. He received a copper plate grant from Immadi Kempe Gouda : (Ep. Car. Suple. iii-iv). The famous Vidyādhiṣatīrtha of Uttaradi Mutt criticises his interpretation of a passage in Nyāyasudhā (vide Vākyārthacan-

This commentary on Rġbhāṣyatīkā of Jayatīrtha is full of grammatical discussions and passages from Mahābhāṣya, Kāṣikā and Upādi Sūtras are quoted. Two MSS of this (Mys. O. L. B 122 and B 127) work which also contain only first two chapters are reported. His other works are (i) a commentary on Nyāyasudhā (published at Dharwar) (ii) a commentary on Tattvavivēkatīkā (Pejāvarmūṭha library) (iii) a commentary on Antareyabhāṣya (not attested by MS so far).

9. ऋगर्थमञ्जरी (RGARTHAMAÑJARI)

by BIDARAHALLI SRINIVĀSATĪRTHA

This is also a sub-commentary on Jayatīrtha's commentary on Rgbhāṣya of Madhvācārya. The commentator Bidarahalli Srinivasatīrtha (C 1590-1640) is a distinguished commentator on Jayatīrtha's works. He was a disciple and a nephew of Yādavārya. He was not a Sanyāsin even though he held the title 'Tīrtha'. This title was conferred on him in appreciation of his meritorious service to the cause of Dvaita literature. He is to be distinguished from Śārkara Srinivāsa and Lingerī Srinivāsa—two more disciples of Yādavārya.

Nearly thirty seven works are ascribed to him, out of which only sixteen are so far published. The MSS of nine are reported in other MSS Libraries also. The present work, his commentary on Sadācārasmṛti and Anubhāṣya are acquired by this Library for the first time. The MSS of the remaining 9 works are yet to be attested by MSS (for details refer to the History of Dvaita literature Vol II p 295).

This gloss gives word by word meaning of the Rgveda hymns selected by Madhvācārya and Jayatīrtha in their Bhāṣya and Tīkā for illustrating their doctrine of three fold interpretation and helps to understand the three meanings clearly for each hymn.

10. ऋग्भाष्यटीकाप्रकाशः (RĠBHĀSYATĪKĀPRAKĀSA)

by SATYANĀTHAYATI

This is also a sub-commentary on Jayatīrtha's commentary on RĠbhāṣya of Madhvācārya. The commentator Satyanāthayati alias Satyanāthatīrtha (C. 1648-74) was a Pontiff of Uttarādīmutt after Satyanāthī. The poem Konkanābhīyudaya speaks of him as a contemporary of the Keladi queen Cannamāmba (C. 1672-98) Chalāri Samkarsana has written a biography of Satyanātha viz. Satyanāthābhīyudaya a MS of which is deposited in this Library.

Twelve works are ascribed to him out of which only two are published. The MSS of seven are reported in other MSS Libraries also. A fragment of his commentary on Nyāyasūdhā is acquired by this Library for the first time. The remaining two are not yet attested by MSS. A MS of the present work is reported in Mys O. L. (No 1903). In this work Satyanātha discusses the grammatical form, etymology etc. of Vedic forms and refutes the criticism against Madhvācārya's RĠbhāṣya. He also gives caution against the corruptions and interpolations in the text of Jayatīrtha's commentary.

26. मन्वर्थचन्द्रिका (MANVARTHACANDRIKA)

by RĀGHAVĀNANDA SARASVATĪ

This is a later commentary on Manusmṛti. The commentator Raghavānanda Sarasvatī { latter half of 1400 A D } was a disciple of Advaya and grand-disciple of Viśvesvara. He refers to the earlier commentators Medhātithi, Kulluka, Govinda and Nārāyaṇa. The extracts of this work were published by Dr Jolly in 1885 and later it is published by V N. Mandalik. The present MS is secured from Sri Śankaracarya Mutt at Samkeśwar (Belgaum Dist.). The MS is pretty old. It is written in clear and bold handwriting. The last few pages are damaged and are not readable. It offers a few interesting and significant readings different from printed editions.

47. आन्हिककौस्तुभः (AHNIKA KAUSTUBHA)

by BIDARAHALLI SRINIVĀSATĪRTHA

This is a commentary on Sadācarasmṛti of Madhvācārya. Sadācarasmṛti is a compendium of Varnāśramadharmā. It is said to be a short anthology of the precepts of Vyasa on religious life. It gives the routine of duties from morn till night. The topics touched upon include Sandhya, Brahmayajña, Vaisvadeva, duties of ascetics etc. There are several commentaries on this. The present Ms contains a commentary on this by Bidarahalli Srinivasatīrtha. The commentary is elaborate, lucid and written in an easy and simple language. It is full of quotations from other dharmasastra works. It is a good guide for religious and pious life. Even though the handwriting is clear the writing is full of errors.

57. दिनत्रयमीमांसा (DINATRAYAMIMAMSA)

by NARĀYANAPANDITĀCĀRYA

Narayanapanditacarya (C 1400) the famous biographer of Śrī Madhvācarya was the third and the youngest son of Trivikramapanditācārya. Nearly eighteen works are written by him. He was a gifted poet and a spirited follower of Madhva. Besides his well-known poems i. e. Madhva Vijaya and Manimāñjarī, he has two more poems to his credit i. e. Subhodaya and Usaharāna. His Nayacandrika is a running commentary on Anuvyākhyāna of Madhvācarya. Saṃgraha Rāmāyana is a metrical epitome of Rāmāyana. About a dozen works of Nārāyanapandita are printed. The present MS contains a small treatise Dinatrayanumamisa which discusses the importance of Ekādasivrata and the proper ascertainment of the commencement and duration of the three days, Dasamī, Ekadasi and Dvādasi which are very important for persons of Vaiṣṇava faith. The MS is written in beautiful handwriting.

83. महाभारतम् (सचित्रम्) (MAHĀBHARATA) (Illustrated)

This MS contains Sabhaparvan of Mahābhārata. It is written on thick but soft country paper with golden line drawings on the border. The letters are big and clear. It contains 14 beautiful illustrations depicting the main events in Sabhāparvan. On the last folio the portraits of the scribe Govinda pandita and his patron Dhyānataraya Timājipandita are drawn. The wooden cover sheet contains the names of all Parvans indicating that once the MS contained all Parvans. This is corroborated by the fact that Virāṭaparvan portion of this very MS is deposited with Srinivasācārya Gurujāl at Malkhed (Gulbarga District). The Malkhed MS also contains similar illustrations and has the portraits of the above two on the last folio. It has a remark 'परमुरामभाऊ पतस्यद्' on the first folio.

The present MS contains a commentary which breaks on 14th folio, covering about eight Adhyāyas.

88. विराटपर्वदुर्बोधार्थप्रकाशिका

(VIRĀTAPARVADURBODHĀRTHA PRAKĀSIKA)

by NAVARATNA NARASIMHA

This is a commentary on Virātaparva portion of Mahābhārata. The commentator Narasimha (C 1900) belongs to the famous Navaratna family which was adorned by Satyadharmanīrtha. In the tradition of the followers of Madhva, Virāta and Udyoga are considered to be the most important Parvans (cf विराटोद्योगपर्वान्) Therefore, commentaries on these two Parvans are written by the followers of this faith. The present commentary is one such. It is very brief. The etymology of select words and the meaning of difficult words are given. The meaning of the verses is made more explicit by the supply of additional words. Brief observations are made bringing out the purport of the stanza. His commentary on Sanatsujātīya (S. No 95) is also acquired by this library.

91-92. विराटपर्वव्याख्या (VIRATAPARVAVYAKHYA)

by SATYADHARMATIRTHA

This is also a commentary on Virataparva portion of Mahābhārata. This commentary is both on Virāṭa and Udyoga as indicated in the first stanza. A MS containing the commentary on the latter is reported elsewhere (Hist. of Dvaita P 313). The commentator Satyadharmatīrtha was a Pontiff of Uttarādī Mutt (C 1798-1832). He was a contemporary of Peshwa Bajī Rao II and his adviser Ghorpade who honoured him at Poona. He was also a contemporary of Dewan Purnāih of Mysore. He patronized Kāsi Timmannācārya of Mysore. Ten works are ascribed to him. His commentaries on Tattvasaṅkhyāna and Bhagavata (a supplement to Yādavarya's commentary) are printed. A MS of his commentary on a portion of Rāmāyana is acquired by this library (S No 120). His Bhāsyadīpikāvatya is a refutation of Jagannātha's Bhāsyadīpikā and a defence of the tradition of interpretation of Raghuttama, Satyanātha and Sārkaṣa Srinivāsa. The present commentary on Virataparvan is written to show that Virāṭa and Udyoga parvans contain the best teaching of Mahābhārata. The critical exposition of Mahābhārata given by Madhvācārya in his Tatparyanirṇaya is fully utilised in this commentary.

103. सुबोधिनी (तात्पर्यनिर्णयटिप्पणी)

SUBODHINI (Tatparyanirṇayatippaṇī)

by VARADARAJA

This is a commentary on the Mahabharatatatparyanirṇaya of Madhvācārya. Madhva regarded Mahābhārata as one of the sources of his theism. He considered this Itihāsa as an allegory of the conflict between theism and atheism. He stressed that the central theme of this Nārāyanakathā is the supremacy of God. In view of this he collected a good number of recensions of Mahābhārata available at his time and prepared a critical digest of it under the title Mahābhāratatatparyanirṇaya. This work of Madhva is commented upon by several Dvaita writers. The present MS contains a commentary on it by Ādya Varadaraja (C 1600). Varadaraja was a teacher of Raghūttamātirtha, the author of Bhavabodha. He is also reported to have written a commentary on Tattvaprakāśikā and an exposition of Gitabhāṣya in Kannada.

TĀTPARYANIRNAYAPRAMĀNASAMGRAHA (Viśadavākyaajanā)

by TIRMALA

This is also a commentary on Mahābhārata-tātparyanirṇaya of Madhvācārya. Madhva's Tātparyanirṇaya is a source book of Dvāita theology. He gives an exposition of his theological doctrines in his work bringing together a large number of references from Itihāsa, Purāṇa, Pāncarātra and other theological literature. The present commentary collects these sources of Madhva and interprets the text with the support of these quotations. The brief remarks of Madhva are fully explained with the help of these passages. Another commentary of the same title is deposited at Government Oriental Manuscripts Library at Madras (No 4830). But that is by a different author : c. Madhusūdanabhikṣu, disciple of Vidyādhīśa.

This is a commentary on Harivamsa by Rāmananda. Nothing could be made out about the commentator from this MS. He is described as Paramahansa parivrajakacarya in the colophon. The commentary is very brief. At the commencement of each adhyaya the theme of it is briefly put in a small stanza. The MS is incomplete and contains adhyayas 128 to 270 only.

नारायणद्विजैत्रस्य सूनुर्दत्तो विमुक्तये ।

पूर्वविद्वत्कृता टीका वेष्णवीं निर्ममे यथा ।

The colophon of the third amsa i.e. इति श्रीमद्भाष्यविष्णुपुराणटीकाया सुबोधिनी तृतीयशेषाद्विध्याय also gives us the same information. These remarks indicate that this commentary is based on some earlier commentary. The commentator salutes Sri Madhvācārya and Jayatīrtha at the commencement. His interpretation is also in accordance with Dvaita doctrines. However, the name Datta is quite unusual to a Dvaita writer.

160, 161, 162. भागवततात्पर्यनिर्णयप्रकाशः (BHAGAVATATĀTPARYANIRNAYAPRAKASA)

by SRINIVĀSA

This is a commentary on Bhāgavatātātparyanirpaya of Sri Madhvācārya. The Bhāgavatātātparya of Madhva itself is a running commentary on select verses of Bhāgavata Purāṇa (about 1600 verses). In this work, Madhva rejects the interpretations of earlier Advaita commentaries such as Puṇyāranya and brings out the theistic-realistic teachings of this Purāṇa. It is interesting to note that both Śāṅkara and Rāmānuja have ignored Bhāgavata while Madhva attaches great importance to it. The text of Madhva has many interesting and important variants from the vulgate of Śrīdhara.

Several sub-commentaries are written on Bhāgavatātātparyā of Madhva. The sub-commentary contained in the present MS i.e., Prakāśa is a lucid explanation of Madhva's work. It is also rich in theological details and philosophical discussions. The commentator Srinivāsa is probably the famous Srinivāsatīrtha. (Nos. 160, 161, 162 contain different portions of this sub-commentary)

236, 237. शास्त्रदीपिकाप्रकाशः (ŚĀSTRADĪPIKĀPRAKĀŚA)

by ŚĀNKARABHAṬṬA

This is a commentary on Śāstradīpikā of Parthasarathi Miśra. The commentator Śāṅkarabhaṭṭa (1550-1620 A.D.) was the son of Nārāyaṇa-bhaṭṭa the author of Prayogaratna. Śāṅkarabhaṭṭa's brother is also reported to have written a commentary on Kumārila's Tantravārtika.

Śankarabhatta has three more works to his credit i. e. Mīmāṃsābālaprakāśa, Mīmāṃsā sārasaṅgraha and Vidhirasāyanadūṣapa.

Śāstradīpikā is a Nibandhana work in the Adhikaranaprasthāna of Purvamīmāṃsā next in importance only to Śabar's Bhāṣya and Kumārila's Vārtika. In this work instead of merely explaining the meaning of the Sūtras, the six constituents of adhikarana i.e. Viśaya, Viśaya etc. are elucidated. This work has become a model to later writers like Mādhavācārya and Khandadeva Miśra. In view of the importance of this work several commentaries have been written on it. The present MS contains a commentary on this i. e. Prakāśa by Śankarabhatta. Prakāśa is a lucid and scholarly commentary. The critical observations made by Śankarabhatta are particularly helpful to meet the Prabhākara's criticism of certain views of Bhāṭṭas. (This library has also acquired the MSS of some more commentaries on Śāstradīpikā vide Nos. 237-241.)

243. 244. भट्टसङ्ग्रहः (BHĀTTASAMGRAHA)

by RĀGHAVENDRAYATI

This is a running commentary on Jaimini's sūtra, following the method of adhikaraparaicanā on the lines of Śāstradīpikā and Bhāttadīpikā. But it is not as elaborate as Śāstradīpikā or Bhāttadīpikā and differs from these two in the interpretation of certain crucial adhikaranas. In the dialectical controversy of Dvaita-advaita Mīmāṃsa rules were referred to by both the parties to their advantage. Many a times this reference to Mīmāṃsa rules led to a difference of opinion regarding the very nature of the rule and the interpretation of Jaimini's sūtras concerned. The traditional commentaries in the circle of Mīmāṃsakas were not of much help in this connection since they had confined only to the sacrificial usage of these rules. Vyāsarāja, Vijayindra and Nārāyaṇācārya had discussed some of the Mīmāṃsa adhikārnas in their works from this point of view. However, an exhaustive examination of all the Jaimini's sūtras from this point of view was necessary and the present commentary fulfilled this need.

The commentator Śrī Raghavendrayati (1623-71 A. D.) is one of the memorable writers of Dvaita school. A fine poetic account of his life and career is given in Raghavendraviṇaya by Nārāyaṇa. He has about 40 works to his credit (about 30 of these are deposited in this Library) Most of these are sub-commentaries on Jayatīrtha's works. His commentary on Nyayasudhā i. e , Parimāla is one of the finest works in Dvaita philosophy. (See for more particulars History of Dvaita Vedānta by Dr B. N. K. Sharma Vol II, p 274)

245, 246 शास्त्रमालावृत्तिः (ŚASTRAMĀLAVṚTTI)

by ANANTABHATTA

Anantabhatta was the son of the famous Kamalakrabhatta and grandson of Ramakṛṣṇabhatta. This work of Anantabhatta is a sub commentary on Śastrapamala of his father which is a commentary on Jaimini's sūtras. With their deep scholarship in Dharmasastra and acquaintance with the actual performance of sacrifices their commentaries on Jaimini's sūtras are very helpful. Much of the technical discussion is avoided and in a simple language the gist of each adhikarana is presented. Many of the procedural subtleties are clarified.

262. विशेषखंडनम् (VIŚEṢAKHANDANA)

This is a small treatise criticising the Ānandatāratamya theory and the category of Viśeṣa in Dvaita school from Rāmānuja point of view. Consistent with their theory of gradations of souls, the Dvaitins accept gradation in ānanda even after liberation. This is opposed in this treatise. The category of Viśeṣa which is accepted by Dvaitin to solve certain difficulties in the formulation of the concept of Bheda is also called into question here and stated to be untenable. This treatise is a useful addition to the discussion of Bheda and Viśeṣa. The MS does not give any information about the author or its date

286. तत्त्वसुबोधिनी (TATTVASUBODHINI)

by PĀNDURANGI SRĪNIVĀSA

This is a sub commentary on Tattvaparakasikā of Jayatīrtha which is a commentary on Brahmasutrābhāṣya of Śrī Madhvācārya. The commentator Pāndurāṅgi Śrīnivāsa was the eldest son of the famous Anandabhāṭṭaraka Pāndurāṅgi and the eldest brother of Narasimhācārya (Vidyādhīśatīrtha) and Kesavabhāṭṭaraka. Vidyādhīśatīrtha mentions him as the first son of Ānandabhāṭṭa. Kesavabhāṭṭaraka refers to him as his teacher also along with his father in his commentary on Nyāyasūtra.

Śrīnivāsa's commentary is simple and explanatory. Only a portion of it is acquired by this library. No other MS of this work is so far reported. Śrīnivāsa is also reported to have written a commentary on Nyāyasūtra which is not yet attested by MS.

by SUMATINDRATĪRTHA

This is also a sub-commentary on Tattvapraśāṣikā of Jayatīrtha. The commentator Sumatindra was a pontiff of Shrī Rāghavendraswāmī Mutt from 1692 to 1725 A. D. He was both a poet and a philosopher. He has about a dozen works to his credit among which his commentary on Gītābhāṣyaprameyadīpikā, which is also known as Bhāvaratnakośa, is most distinguished. The present work is elaborate and scholarly. Passages from earlier commentators are frequently quoted. Grammatical notes are added to explain rare usages. The work is available in fragments and no complete MS is so far procured.

293. प्रमेयमुक्तावली (PRAMEYAMUKTĀVALI)

by TĀMRAPARNI SRINIVĀSA

This is also a Sub-commentary on Tattvapraśāṣikā of Jayatīrtha. In the tradition of Dvaita literature objections raised by the writers of other schools against Madhva's Bhāṣya and Tikāś of Jayatīrtha were usually answered by writing new sub-commentaries on these works bringing out the implicit arguments of Madhva and Jayatīrtha and drawing attention to the answers already given. Therefore, large number of sub-commentaries are written on the works of Jayatīrtha. His Tattvapraśaṅkā is particularly rich in this respect. As many as twenty two sub-commentaries are available on this work. The present work is one such sub-commentary. Even though it is not of very high order compared with more important sub-commentaries on this work, its merit lies in its being a good reference to Jayatīrtha's statements elsewhere bearing on the same subject and the statements in Bhāṣya and Prācinatīkāś.

The commentator informs the line of his teachers as Nṛsiṃha Nārāyaṇa Viṭṭhala (his father) and Tīrtharya.

300. अनुभाष्यार्थसङ्ग्रहः (ANUBHASYARTHASAMGRAHA)

by NĀRĀYAṆAPANḌITĪCĀRYA

This is the earliest commentary on Śrī Madhva's Anubhāṣya. Anubhāṣya is a short metrical summary of the adhikāra-pādas of Brahmasūtras in thirty-four Anustubhas. But this short work contains all the essential points of Brahmasūtras as explained in Madhvabhāṣya. Nārāyaṇapandita notices this special feature of this work in his Madhva-vijaya as अनन्तरं प्रकृतं त्वयाणां भाष्यसंग्रहः. In the present commentary he actually demonstrates this remark with full explanation of each stanza. The existence of a commentary by Nārāyaṇapandita on this work was not known until this MS was recovered.

303. अणुभाष्यविवरणम् (ANUBHASYAVIVARANA)

by SRINIVĀSATĪRTHA

This is also a commentary on Anubhasya of Sri Madhva. A MS of this is recovered for the first time. Srinivasatirtha is a prolific glossator and his glosses enjoy the widest popularity among the followers of Madhva. His style is simple and direct. He clarifies the meaning of many important terms and phrases in the works of Madhva and Jayatirtha. The present commentary is a good guide to understand the contents of Anubhasya so briefly put compressing the essentials of Brahmasutras (for his other works see note on No. 9).

309. रामशब्दार्थगर्भिताणुभाष्यविवरणम्

by SATYASANTUṢṬAŚIṢYA

This is a unique commentary on Apubhāṣya of Sri Madhvācārya. The subject matter of each adhikāraṇa of Brahmasūtras, as summarised in Anubhāṣya, is shown to be contained in the meaning of the word Rāma which is etemologically explained accordingly. The commentator exhibits great skill in sanskrit grammar in giving as many etemological explanations to the word Rāma as the number of adhikāraṇas in Brahmasūtras. In fact, he does not find any difficulty in tracing every aspect of the supreme being, stated in Brahmasūtras, in the word Rāma. More than his scholarship in Vedānta and Vyākaraṇa, his devotion to Rāmanāma has resulted in this unique commentary. He does not give any information about him beside mentioning that he was a disciple of Satyasantusṭa (C. 1841-42) a pontiff of Uttarādi Mutt.

318. वाक्यार्थचन्द्रिका (VĀKYARTHACANDRIKĀ)

by VIDYĀDHĪŚĀTĪRTHA

This is an elaborate and scholarly sub-commentary on Nyāyasudhā of Jayatīrtha which is a commentary on Brahmasūtrānūvyākhyāna of Śrī Madhvācārya. Madhva's Anuvyakhyāna is a critical supplement to his own Bhāṣya. In this work not only he criticises Śāṅkara's interpretation of Brahmasūtras but also critically examines some of the fundamental theories of Advaita Vedānta such as the identity of Jīva and Brahman, the concept of anirvacanīya etc. He also refutes Vivaranakāra Śrīharsa, Ānandabodha etc. Therefore, Anuvyakhyāna of Śrī Madhva has been the centre of Dvaitadvaita dialectical controversies. Jayatīrtha, the commentator-par-excellence on Madhva, has fully developed all these discussions into his great commentary Nyāyasudhā on this work. Jayatīrtha critically examines the whole range of dialectical literature till his time not only of Śāṅkara's school or of Vedānta system but of all the systems of Indian Philosophy such as Mīmāṃsā, Nyāya-vaśeṣika, Sāṃkhya-yoga etc. Thus, Jayatīrtha's Nyāyasudhā is an encyclo-pædic work on Indian Philosophy. In view of this unique nature of the work several sub-commentaries (about 26) were written on this work in course of time. The present work Vākyārthacandrikā is the most outstanding sub-commentary on Nyāyasudhā of Jayatīrtha.

Vidyādhīśa the author of this sub-commentary was a pontiff of Uttarādi Mutt (C. 1619-31). He was the son of the famous Ānandabhaṭṭa Pandu-rangi of Punatāmba (Ahmadnagar District in Mahārāstra State) the author of Nyāyāmṛtakantakoddhara (S. No. 485). There was a philosophical disputation between Vidyādhiśa and Rangajibhatta the brother of Bhattoji Dīksita at the court of Keṇḍi Venkaṭappa Nāyaka (see S. No. 508 for particulars of this debate). A full account of Vidyādhiśa's life is given in a poem Vidyādhiśavijaya by Janārdana Śūri (S. No. 604).

This work of Vidyādhiśa is a critical and scholarly exposition of Nyāya-sudhā. The commentator reveals his mastery over Mīmāṃsa and Vyākaraṇa and answers Appayya Dīksita's criticism that the codes of these two śāstras are disregarded by Madhva. He critically reviews the views of Vivaraṇa and other standard authors of Advaita. This work is only on first five adhikaraṇas, the rest being completed by his younger brother Keśavabhatta Pāndurāṅgi. His other works are: sub-commentaries on Pramāṇalaksanātīkā, Viśnutattvanirṇayatīkā, Kathālakṣanātīkā and Talavakāra Bhasya. He has also written some small treatises on religious practices such as Tīthitraya-nirṇaya.

The present MS is the oldest available of this work and is in a fairly good condition. It is very accurate and is written in a good and clear hand-writing. It was handed down in Pāndurāṅgi family.

321. वाक्यार्थरत्नमाला (VĀKYARTHARATNAMALĀ)

by NARASIMHĀCĀRYA PĀNDURANGI

This is a further sub-commentary on Vakyarthacandrika of Vidyādhīśa. The commentator Narasimhācārya was the son of Vidyādhīśa's younger brother Keśavabhattachāraka (C 1605-60). By this time Pandurangī family seems to have moved from Surpālī (a village in Belgaum District on the bank of Kṛṣṇā) to Māsūr (a village in Dharwar District on the bank of Kunudvatī). A peepul tree in memorial of Ratnamalakāra along with another for Balayyacarya Pandurangī is found in Masur and a few descendants of Pandurangī family still live there. Ratnamala is both on Vakyarthacandrikā of Vidyādhīśa and its continuation Sesavakyarthacandrikā of Kesavabhattachāraka. Both these were very terse and needed further explanation. This purpose is served by Ratnamala. Narasimhācārya had the advantage of directly studying under his father and as such he records many additional arguments current in the oral tradition of teaching Nyayasūdhā. The MS is very old. Several folios are missing.

330. सुधाटिप्पणी (विट्ठलभट्टीया) [SUDHĀTIPPANĪ]

by VIṬṬHALABHATṬA

This is also a sub commentary on Nyāyasudhā of Jayatīrtha. The commentator does not give any information about him in this work. In the margin, the remark विट्ठलभट्टाया is found in all the folios. However, one of the introductory verses is

नृसिंहाचार्यवयांश्च ज्ञानादिगुणवारिधीन् ।
तत्प्रशिन्यान् विट्ठलार्यान् भजेऽहं बुद्धिशुद्धये ॥ gives an impression that विट्ठलभट्टा was a teacher of the commentator, not the commentator himself. It is also likely that this stanza is inserted by the scribe who might have been a disciple of the commentator Viṭṭhala. The scribe gives first verses of Anuvyākhyāna and Sudhā in the introduction and is not very careful in separately mentioning them from the text. Similarly he might have inserted this stanza also. This sub-commentary is scholarly and makes many crucial points in Nyāyasudhā more clear.

331. सुधारिप्पणी (SUDHATIPPANI)

by MAHESVARASŒRI

This is also a sub commentary on Nyayasudhā of Jayatīrtha. It is very brief and simple. This MS is secured from Malkhed in Gulbarga district. The name Mahesvara is quite unusual to a member of Dvaita faith. The seventh pontiff in Sirur Mutt bears the name Mahesa. There is nothing either to support or to prevent the identity of these two. No other MS of this work is reported.

(N B The MS was lent to Sri Satyapramodatīrtha Swamiji of Uttarādī Mutt and is yet to be received. Therefore, our inability to reproduce the beginning and end is regretted.)

(NYĀYAVIVARANASAMBANDHADIPIKA)

This is a brief abstract of the adhikaranas of Brahmasūtras based on Nyāyavivarana of Madhvācārya. The author Sankarācārya was the librarian of Sri Madhava. He was the younger brother of Trivikramapandita the father of Madhva's biographer Nārāyanapandita. He is referred to in Madhvaṅṅaya (canto XV st 136). The present work is his only available work. In this short work the essentials of Pūrvaṅṅakṅsa and Siddhānta of each adhikaraṅṅa are given in one or two words. This work is very useful to know Sri Madhva's interpretations of the sūtras at a glance.

by NṚSIMHA

This is a word by word interpretation of Brahmasūtras by Chālāri Nṛsimha, the disciple of Satyanāthaṭīrtha (C. 1648-74). Nṛsimha was a prolific writer and about fifteen works are ascribed to him. R̥gbhāsyatippaṇi, Bhāgavatatātparyatippaṇi and Smṛtyarthasāgara are his major works. Śābdikakāṇthābharana is his another important work.

His present work clearly sets the meaning of each word of the Sūtras and enables to understand the precise meaning of the same.

He was one of the distinguished disciples of Yādavārya. The present work of his is acquired for the first time by this Library. It is incomplete. No other MS of this work is so far reported.

348. सूत्रयुक्तिसङ्ग्रहः (SŪTRAYUKTISAMGRAHA)

by BHAGAVANTARĀYA

This is a very useful summary of Pārmapakṣa and Siddhānta of adhikāraṇas of Brahmasūtras in verses. The author Bhagavantarāya (C. 1778-1848) was a contemporary of Sri Jagannātha Dāsa and a disciple of Rottī Varadācārya. He had studied English and worked as Tehsildar and Munsif in Bellari and Dharwar districts. He has written a detailed commentary on Tattvapraśāṅgikā. His present work is brief but scholarly. He himself has written a commentary also on this work (S. No. 349).

by KALLĀPUR ANNAYĀCĀRYA

This is also a summary of the Adhikaranas of Brahmasūtras in simple language. Śrī Madhva's Bhasya is full of quotations and his intervening observations are deeply suggestive. Jayatīrtha's commentary on it is elaborate and terse with dialectical discussions. Therefore, several digests of these two works were written by later writers to bring home the essential points of these two works. The present work is one of such attempts. The author Anpayācārya was the son of Ramacandracārya who was a contemporary of Śrī Satyadharmatīrtha (C 1798-1830)

358 to 361. श्रुत्यर्थप्रकाशः (SRUTYARTHAPRAKASA)

by RĀMAKRṢṢA

This is a commentary on the Sruti and Purana passages quoted in Madhva's Bhāṣya on Brahmasūtras. Madhva quotes a large number of passages from Sruti, Purana and Pancaratra Samhitās in support of his interpretation of Sūtras. He follows the method of इतिहासपुराणाभ्यां च समुपवृद्धम् in the case of Sūtras also since the Sūtras have embodied the doctrines of Upanisads. He shows that there is a continuous tradition of interpretation and he is only restoring the same. To understand Madhva's Bhāṣya fully one has to know the correct meaning of all these passages. The present work is intended to serve this purpose. All the passages quoted in Madhva Bhāṣya are interpreted word by word here. The commentator Rāmakṛṣṇa was a disciple of Pāndurāṅgi Keśavabhāṭṭāraka (C 1605-1660). No other work of this writer is reported.

This is also a commentary on the Śruti and Smṛti passages quoted in Brahmasūtra Bhasya of Śrī Madhvācārya. Here, in addition to the actual passages quoted the Viśayavākyas of the Adhikārapas which are not actually quoted in the Bhāṣya are also interpreted. Mostly Śruti passages are selected for interpretation and only obscure passages from Purāṇa and Pāncarātra are interpreted. The MS does not give any information about the commentator Tonasi Srinivāsa

by VIŚVEŚATĪRTHA (Alias Viśvapātīrtha)

This is a very useful and elaborate sub-commentary on Aitareya Bhāṣya of Śrī Madhva. The commentator is called Viśvapātīrtha in the colophon of MS No. 392 and Viśveśa in the margin of MS No. 393. This Viśveśa is identified with Viśveśavaratīrtha (C 1580-1640) the fourteenth Pontiff of Pejavar Mutt in the History of Dvaita literature (pp. 273). Viśvapātīrtha is also mentioned as a commentator on Saṁgraha Rāmāyana and Madhvavijaya (pp. 378). It is clear from the remarks in the colophon and the margin that so far as the present commentator is concerned both the names i. e. Viśveśa and Viśvapāti refer to him. However, his identity with the Pontiff of Pejavar Mutt and the commentator on Saṁgraha Rāmāyana need further investigation.

Sabdaratnaprabhā and Tripathagā of Sātārī Rāghavendrācārya and it is written in the same hand-writing. Therefore, probably this is also a work of Sātārī Rāghavendrācārya of the famous Gajendragadkar family.

(BHAVAPRAKASIKĀ) [GITĀBHASYATIKĀ]

by NARAHARITĪRTHA

Naraharitīrtha was a direct disciple of Madhva. He belonged to Kalinga and was a Regent in Kalinga for twelve years (C 1281-93 cf. Sri Kūrmam and Simhācalam inscriptions Epigraphica Indica VI 263-5). His father appears to have been a minister at Kalinga. Naraharitīrtha brought Mula Rāma images from Kalinga and handed over them to Sri Madhva. He became a Pontiff at Sri Madhvacarya's Pītha from 1324 to 1333 A. D.

About fifteen works are ascribed to Naraharitīrtha. Only two of these are the present work and his commentary on Yamakabhārata are available in MSS. His commentaries on Viśnutattvanirpaya and Karmanirṇaya are known by reference. Nothing is known about the rest. Curiously the present MS as well as the MS deposited at Bangalore Press of this work break abruptly in the middle of VII chapter. The two MSS do not appear to be the copies of each other on closer scrutiny. Therefore the matter needs further investigation.

413. गीतातात्पर्यनिर्णयप्रकाशिका
(GITATATPARYANIRNAYAPRAKĀŚIKA)
 by PADMANĀBHATĪRTHA

Padmanabhatīrtha was the first successor of Madhva on Madhva-pīṭha outside Tulu country. He was met by Madhva on his way back to Udipi from his first North Indian tour. He belonged to Punatambā (Ahmednagar District) on the bank of Godavari which was then a seat of learning. His name was Ananda bhattāraka (translated as Śobhanabhatta in Madhva-vijaya). He had a debate with Madhva and accepted Dvaita faith. Anandabhattāraka the father of Śrī Vidyādhīśatīrtha who also belonged to Punatambā was probably a descendent of Padmanabhatīrtha. This family which later on migrated to Pānduranga palli (Pandharpur) came to be known as Pānduranga family and has made considerable contribution to Dvaita literature. Padmanābhatīrtha is referred to as कर्नाटकाक्षरादि or as a scholar belonging to the northernmost region of Karnataka and as कर्नाटकरूपसंज्ञनगुरु or a preceptor of the people in Karnataka and other eastern regions to Tulu country.

About fifteen works are ascribed to Padmanābhatīrtha. He is the earliest known commentator on Madhva's Dasaprakaranas, Sūtra Bhasya, Anuvyakhyāna and Gītā-Bhasya. The present work is a commentary on Gītā-tatparyanirṇaya of Śrī Madhva.

The commentator Satyaprajña was a disciple of Satyavrata of Uttaradī Mutt but he does not seem to have actually occupied the Pītha after Satyavrata as his name is not included in the Mutt's genealogy.

He has three works to his credit, i. e. the present work, a commentary on Isāvāsya (S No 368) and one on Tattvasamkhyāna.

416. गीताविवृतिः (GĪTĀVIVRTI)

by VIDYĀDHIRĀJA

Vidyādhirāja was the direct disciple and successor of Jayatīrtha on Mādhvapīṭha (C. 1388-1412). He has two works to his credit, i. e. Gītāvivṛti and Viṣṇusahasranāmāṭikā (S. No, 535). His commentary on Gītā is the earliest direct commentary on Gītā from Dvaita point of view. He closely follows Gītābhāṣya and Gītātātparya. He supplies a brief commentary to all Gītā verses and does not pass over any verse as is the case with Mādhva. His style is simple and direct, and closely resembles Jayatīrtha's style.

There is another Vidyādhirāja of Gaudasārasvata Mutt who has also written a commentary on Gītā under the same title. That work is different from the present work. The present MS is well written and is in fairly good condition.

Nos. 425, 428, 430, 434, 438, 451, 454) The three mentioned above are yet to be attested by MSS. His style is very terse and full of grammatical discussions. Vijayīndratīrtha (C. 1514-95) was one of the most powerful and active exponent of Dvaita school after Vyāsarāja. He is credited with one hundred and four works in all. But MSS of about twenty only are available. About thirty are known by references and the rest are practically lost. His sub-commentaries on two of the Prakaraṇas (S. Nos. 435, 448). Tattvapraśaṅkā (S. No. 283) and his Nyāyamālāsamgraha are preserved in this Library. (See History of Dvaita literature Vol. II pp. 165 for details regarding his life and works).

by PĀNDURANGĪ KEŚAVABHAṬṬĀRAKA

This is also a sub commentary on the commentary on Tattvasamkhyana by Jayatīrtha. It is terse with grammatical discussions and Paṇskaras. It is not explanatory as in the case of Srinivasatīrtha's sub commentaries but a scholarly work meant for further debate of the points raised in the original and Jayatīrtha's commentary. This work is called Gururājīya in the margin. This is slightly confusing. Anandabhattacharya the father of Kesavabhattacharya was also known as Gururaja and he has also written a sub commentary on Tattvasamkhyana. The works of Śrī Yādīrāja are also called Gururājīya. However the present work is by Kesavabhattacharya as is made clear in the Colophon even though the usual verse यद्विद्याधीशगुरो etc is missing in the beginning (For more particulars about Kesavabhattacharya see note on S No 328)

by VIJAYINDRATĪRTHA

This is one of the two surviving sub commentaries on Dasaprakaranas by Vijayindratīrtha (C 1514-95) The sub commentaries of Vyasaraja, Rāghavendra and Śrīnivasatīrtha on Dasaprakaranas made all other sub-commentaries on these superfluous and therefore they all went out of use Only specialists made occasional references to them This explains the absence of MSS for many of these even though these are known by references But individual works with special merit have remained The present MS belongs to this group This sub commentary aims at answering the contemporary criticism of Dvaita views with particular reference to the interpretation of certain Śruti passages offered in Tattvodyota and its Tika (For the life and other works of Vijayindra see History of Dvaita Literature Vol II p 165)

451. तत्त्वोद्योतटिप्पणी (TATTVODYOTATIPPANI)

by PĀNDURANGI KĒṢAVABHATṬĀRAKA

Among the Dasaprakaranas, Tattvodyota and Tattvanirṇaya are very important Both are devoted to the criticism of Advaita doctrines and Advaita interpretation of important Śruti passages Therefore, many later Dvaita writers have kept up the tradition of this critical literature through their sub-commentaries on these two The present sub-commentary by Keshavabhattacha-raka on Tattvodyotatikā exhibits his critical zeal and high scholarship as is the case with his other works His intention is not so much to explain the text or Jayatīrtha's commentary but to bring in new arguments and offer fresh criticism This he achieves through new pariskāras and new etymological explanations

by PĀNDURANGI KEŚAVABHAṬṬĀRAKA

Among the works of Kesavabhattacharaka, his sub commentary on Visnuta ttvanirnayatika is only next to his commentaries on Sudhā and Candrikā It is an elaborate and exhaustive sub commentary Three crucial points of Indian Philosophy viz the nature of Sabdapramānya and impersonal nature of Vedas, the doctrine of Bheda and the Reality of external world, the theistic basis of Vedantic Philosophy and Supremacy of God are discussed in this work with skill and precision Kesavabhattacharaka has handled all these issues in his sub commentary and has revealed his scholarship in Nyaya, Mīmāṃsā and Vedānta The MS is well written and is in fairly good condition Folios 1-2 are missing.

457. कर्मनिर्णयटिप्पणी (KARMANIRṆAYATIPPANĪ)

by SATYAPRIYATĪRTHA

Satyapriyatīrtha was a Pontiff of Uttarādi Mutt (C. 1737-1744) before Satyabodhatīrtha. Two works of his viz. his commentary on Patanjali's Vyākaraṇa Mahābhāṣya (S. No. 660) and the present work are deposited in this Library. No other work of his is reported.

Karmanirṇaya gives the higher interpretation of Mahānamnī hymns connected with the Pṛstha Stotra at the Naiskevalya Śāstra and also the Ṛks to be used in Śodāśī Śāstra. The interpretation of these is only illustrative, the purpose being to show that even Karmakāṇḍa portion deals with Brahman the Supreme Reality. The commentator Satyapriya being a Vaiyākaranin has further worked out the grammatical and accentual aspect of the interpretation in greater detail.

503. अभिनवगदा (ABHINAVAGADA)

by SATYANĀTHAYATI

This is a refutation and critical examination of Appayya Dīksita's Criticism of the first five Adhikaraṇas of Madhva Bhasya and Jayatīrtha and Vyāsaraja's commentaries on it. The discussion on each Adhikarāṇa is called a 'Yuddha' and there are five battles fought with this Abhinava Gadā. The stanzas from Appayya's works are quoted in full and criticised in detail. The work is not merely a defence of Madhva's interpretation but points out several defects in Advaita interpretation of Pañcādhikaraṇa portion and the recoiling nature of Appayya Dīksita's arguments. Satyanātha draws his arguments directly from Madhva Bhasya through his own interpretation and only remarks that the same is also intended by Jayatīrtha and other earlier commentators. He is vehement if not also original.

by SATYANĀTHAYATI

This is a small treatise discussing certain topics that usually arise in philosophical debate such as the nature and definition of Pramāṇa, the procedure of Sabdabodha when conflicting attributes are involved in Uddesa and Vidheya, whether a Purvapaksa is always necessary to formulate a Siddhanta how the non existent is projected in our knowledge etc. Certain textual points in Brahmasutras are also discussed and the nature of a few concepts is cleared. The work is in the nature of personal notes to score points in philosophical disputations

by ĀNANDAJAYADĀSA

In this treatise the Nyāyavaiśeṣika categories are criticised. The author first criticises their general definition of a category. Then he proceeds to criticise each category Dravya, Guna etc. The concept of Samavāya is shown, to be untenable. He mostly draws his arguments from Tarkatandava of Vyasarāja. It is a good study and criticism of the theory of seven categories.

508. रङ्गोजीभट्टशिष्यवादीन्द्राधिकारः

(RANGOJIBHATTASISYAVĀDINDRADHIKKARA)

by PĀNDURANGI KEŚAVABHATTĀRAKA

This MS consists of two parts (1) Rangojibhattadhiḥkāra and (ii) Vāḍīndradhiḥkāra. The first part gives the details of a debate between Vidyādhīśa and Rangōjibhatta at the court of Keladi Venkatappa Nāyaka (C 1582-1629) and the second, the continuation of the same between Kesavabhāta, the younger brother of Vidyādhīśa, and Vādīndra a disciple of Rangōjibhatta

This historic debate is referred to by Kondabhāta, the son of Rangōjibhatta, in his Vaiyākaranabhūsanāsāra as follows

विद्याधीशवडेह सङ्गकयति श्रीमाध्वमहार्कं ।
जित्वा केलदि वेकटय्य सविधेय्यादोलिका प्राप्तवान् ॥
यश्चने मुनिर्वयसूत्रविवृतिं सिद्धान्तभंगं तथा ।
माध्याना तमहं गुरुपमगुरुङ्गोजिमह भजे ॥

This disputation, it seems, dragged on for three months and according to Vidyādhīśaviyaya Rangōjibhatta was silenced on the issue whether Jñāna leads to Salvation or Prayagamāraṇa Vidyādhīśaviyaya mentions it thus

इति तत्र यत्तौद्रमायिनोर्लिखितान्योन्यविचित्रपत्रिकम् ।
व्यगलत्प्रसभ विवादिनोर्वत मासत्रितय दिनोपमम् ॥
अयं जातु खले प्रयागभुव्यपवर्गोऽमुमुचामितीरिणि । अपरोक्षचिदेव हेतुरित्यवदत् ससदि त सदप्रणीः ॥

The first part of the present MS mentions the same question as the issue under debate between the two Here the minutes of the debate are arranged under four chapters The four points Sravana is stated to be a necessary means to Salvation, Jñāna is stated to be the means for Utkrānti, Utkrānti is only Ānusāṅgika, a beginningless state cannot be the aim are discussed under each chapter and it is argued that something other than Jñāna is means for salvation which state is not as described by Dvaita Vedāntin All these four points are suitably answered by Vidyādhīśa

The second part is a continuation of the same debate between Kesavabhāta and Vādīndra and mainly centres round the question of Utkrānti Vidyādhīśaviyaya mentions Vādīndra and states that he had a debate with Vidyādhīśa himself The commentator of Vidyādhīśaviyaya wrongly identifies this Vādīndra with a Pontiff of this name in Rāghavendra Mutt who is much later than Vidyādhīśa Therefore, the writer of that poem is not properly informed on this point

At the end of the first part of the present MS the circumstances of this historic meeting of Vidyādhīśa and Rangajibhatta are mentioned as follows :

स्वशिष्यजनावलोकनेच्छया इक्ष्मीग्रामं प्रस्थितान्मास्तत्तयनाथः पितृत्वाभिमाने सति रंगोजीभट्टेन सह प्रसंगार्थं भवद्विः प्रत्याय मत्समीपमार्गत्यमित्याह्वयत् विजिगीषुवाद्विप्रतिपाद्यपन्यस्तस्वस्वाभिमतप्रमेयसाधकयुक्तिसदसत्त्वनिर्णयकर्तृभयसिद्धाताभिज्ञप्राप्तिकाभावे प्रसंगस्य कोलाहलमात्रपर्यवसानेन फलासिद्धया भवत्समीपे तादृशप्राप्तिकाभावात् भवद्विदुषः प्रसंगे लालसत्त्वे तादृशानेकप्राप्तिकोपेतचोदमंडलादिदेवविशेषप्रस्थानभावयोः न्याय्यमिति स्वकीयविद्वान् देवात् प्रेषणीय इत्यस्माभिरुत्तरितेपि भवदीदृशसंवृतद्रययोगचातुरीनि भान्ननजन्यकौतुकमात्रेच्छुं प्रति नेतादृशानुयोगः समुचित इति नः प्रलोभ्य समीपागतान् संभाष्य स्वयमेवाद्यौ काशीमरणमात्रस्य न मोक्षसाधनत्वमपि ब्रह्मज्ञानस्यैवेत्येतेषां मन्त्रित्युपाक्षिपत् । जंतोर्त्रियमाणस्य प्राणेषूत्क्रममाणेषु रटस्तां कं ब्रह्म व्याचष्ट इत्यादिवाक्यप्रमापितकाशीमरणमात्रस्य मोक्षसाधनत्वमप्यपि कथमेते सदृशा इति नायकमत्तमुपापीदत् । तर्हि अपानं सोममित्यादिव्याक्यप्रमापितकर्ममात्रस्य मोक्षसाधनत्वमपि किं न स्यादित्युत्तगति etc.

Thus, this small MS is a unique record of a historic debate between two scholars of rival schools of thought.

513. तत्त्वसारसंग्रहः (TATTVASĀRASAMGRAHA)

by SRINIVĀSICĀRYA

This work deals with Dvaita theology. It draws its material from Bhāratatātparyā and Bhāṅavatātātparyā of Madhva, Viṣṇuśaṅkara and Varāha-purāṇa.
The procedure of creation and the paupāric geography are explained in detail.

The author pays homage to Satyanātha, Satyābhinava and Chalarī Narasimhacarya. He also mentions one Satyādhisa whose name is not found in Mutt geneologies and therefore who might not have been on the Pīṭha even though might have received āśrama. One Janārdana is also referred to as his teacher. These references make it clear that the author must have been a contemporary of Satyābhinava (C 1674-1706) and Chalarī Narasimha.

by NĀRĀYANAPANDITĀCĀRYA

This is a small poem in three āśvāsas by Nārāyanapandita the famous biographer of Madhvācārya. The theme is the theft of the celestial tree by Kṛṣṇa. The poet shows his skill in Sabdāṅkārās particularly in Yamaka.

The MS contains only two cantos together with a brief commentary (see note on No. 57 for more particulars about Nārāyanandita).

604. विद्याधीशविजयः (VIDYĀDHĪŚAVIJAYA)

by JANĀRDANASCRĪ

This is a biography of Vidyādhīśatīrtha who was a Pontiff of Uttarādi Mutt during 1619–1631. Vidyādhīśa was the second son of Ānandabhattachāraka Pāndurāṅgi of Pūnatāmbā (Ahmed Nagar District in Mahārāstra). His earlier name was Narasimhācārya. He studied under his father and became a Pontiff after Vēdayāsātīrtha. He had philosophical disputations with many scholars of his time. Śivapāṇḍita, Viśvapāṇḍita, Tanabhatta, Dattapāṇḍita the son of Nāganātha of Saṅgamner, Narasapāṇḍita and Lingayapāṇḍita of Bijapur, Rangajibhatta and Vādindra were some of the scholars with whom he had scholarly encounters. He was honoured by Venkatappa Nāyaka of Keladi, Venkatapati Rāya of Candragiri and Raghunātha Nāyaka of Tanjore. He toured all over India and was entombed at Ekacakranagar on the bank of Jamna (Meerut District in U P). The present poem gives all these details.

The author of this poem Janārdana Suri states himself to be a disciple of Vedanidhātīrtha the successor of Vidyādhiṣa. He has been a contemporary of Vedanidhi, Satyavrata and Satyanidhi. It is not clear whether he was also a contemporary of Vidyādhiṣa or collected the material for his poem through the oral tradition. The latter seems to be the case since he is wrongly informed in a few details. He mentions Sudhīndratīrtha but does not mention Raghavendrātīrtha. He confuses Vādindra the Advaita scholar with the Vādindra of Raghavendra Mutt who is much later. He claims to be the author of both the poem and the commentary but a few discrepancies between the two create suspicion about this claim. He also claims to have written Satyanidhi Vijaya which is not attested by MS.

606. सत्यनाथाभ्युदयः (SATYANATHĀBHYUDAYA)

by SANKARSANA

This is also a biographical poem depicting the life and career of Satyanathātīrtha. Satyanatha was a Pontiff of Uttaradi Mutt (C 1648-74) after Satyanidhi. He is reported to have visited Banaras when Aurangzeb invaded that city. He was a prolific writer and his three great works i.e. Abhinavacandrikā, Abhinavatāṇḍava and Abhinavagadā have given him a high place in the history of Dvānta literature.

The present biography gives some interesting contemporary historical information besides giving the details of the scholarly adventures of Satyanātha. The poet Sankarsana belongs to the wellknown Chalāri family and was a disciple of Satyabhīnava. The MS contains a commentary also by Subrahmanyacārya on the poem (See also the notes on No 10)

608. सत्यबोधविजयः (SATYABODHAVIJAYA)

by KANCI KRŚNĀCĀRYA

This is a biography of Sri Satyabodhatīrtha who was a Pontiff of Uttarādī Mutt during 1744–1783 This was a period of political uncertainty in South India. But Sri Satyabodha was equally respected by the rival rulers of the time, Hindus or Muslims, and some times they even approached him to settle their disputes The Nawab of Savanur persuaded him to permanently settle at Savanur. Janoji Nimbalkar, the Nawab of Arcot, the ruler of Ramesvar, Morarirao of Gooty, Raghoji Bhonsle, Fatch Singh Gaikwad, Peswas of Poona and even Hyder Ali and Tippu made donations to his Mutt and highly respected him He was a great scholar and a mystic. The present poem gives a graphic picture of his many miracles It also throws a good deal of light on contemporary political history. The MS contains a commentary by the author himself (A brief selection of this is published by Sri P. S. Ritti of Savanur).

612. सत्यसंधालङ्कार (SATYASANDHĀLANKARA)

by KRSNA

In this interesting work about hundred Arthālankaras are explained But the primary purpose of the writer is not so much to explain the Alankaras but to glorify his preceptor Satyasandha He first explains the nature of an Alankara and then by way of illustration writes १ stanza containing that Alankara and glorifying Satyasandha A brief explanation of the stanza is then given

Satyasandha was a Pontiff of Uttarādi Mutt (C 1783 1794) after Satyabodha The MS does not give any information about the author beyond his father's name i e Rāmārya Folio 1 4 are missing

652. सुशब्दप्रदीपः (SUSABDAPRADIPA)

by CHALĀRI ŚEṢA

This is a commentary on Pāṇini's Sūtras following the model of Bhaṭṭoji Dīkṣita. But the arrangement is slightly different. After Sañjāna and Sandhi Tintantas and Krdantas are treated and the portion dealing with the noun is not available. The explanations are more elaborate. The Anuvṛtti etc. are explicitly worked out and the illustrations are drawn from a wider field.

The commentator Chalāri Śeṣa is known by his Pramanacandrika a small treatise on epistemology and his commentary on Madhva Vijaya. He has also commented upon Anubhāṣya, Tattvasamkhyāna, Karmanirnaya and some of the Upaniṣads.

by SATYAPRIYATĪRTHA

This is a learned commentary on Mahābhāṣya by Satyapriya (1737-44). His sub-commentary on Karmanirnaya is already noticed (S. No. 457) He has also commented upon Mundaka and Māndukya Upanisads, and also on Tattvaprasaṅgikā and Candrika

by YASAVANTA

The work is arranged under twelve chapters and the usual topics of prosody i. e. Aksaragana, Matragana, Sama and Visamavrttis, Prastara, Nasta Uddista etc are dealt with. But the chief merit of this work is that it deals with the metres in Apabhramsa languages and Satpadi metres. A variety of metres current outside the Sanskrit literature are included, many of which are more suitable for musical recitation than the usual Sanskrit metres. The author gives some details about him in last stanza and gives the date and place of the composition also. Fol 1-2 are damaged.

685. काव्यप्रकाशदीपिका (KĀVYAPRAKĀSADIPIKA)

by JANĀRDANAVYĀSA

This is one of the numerous commentaries on Kavyaprakāsa of Mammata. The commentator Janārdanavyāsa salutes Jayarāma the famous logician in the Mangala stanza. The colophon also states the commentator to be a disciple of the logician Jayarama. Therefore, it is a work of the disciple of Jayarama but not Jayarama himself as stated in Baroda catalogue.

The MS is secured from Sankeśvara in Belgaum District. The full title of the work is Kavyaprakasasloka-gudharthadīpikā. The title gives an impression that only the Udaharana stanzas are explained. However, the text as a whole is explained. The Navyanyayapariskāra style is adopted in explaining the definitions, relations etc. The work is very scholarly and many new shades of meanings are brought out and several new points are made. The MS contains chapters 4th to 10th only. The 4th chapter itself has the Mangala stanza at the commencement.

AND

अलङ्कारभाष्यम् (ALANKARABHĀSYA)

by KṚṢṆĀVADHŪTAPĀNDITA

Kṛṣṇavadhūtāpandita (C. 1835-1909) was a versatile scholar. He is reported to have written about thirty works on grammar, literature, nyāya and vedānta. However, only about 17 are available. Two of them viz Advaitanavanīta and Sūtrarthamṛtalaharī are published. A few are deposited in this Library.

The present work (No. 689) is in Sūtra form and deals with all aspects of Alankarasāstra. At the outset the categories Dravya, Guṇa etc., are also worked out with a view to explain the concept of Sādrśya etc., from Alankārikā's point of view. The work is brief but a good survey of Alankarasāstra.

No. 690 is a Bhāṣya on No. 689 by the author himself. It contains elaborate explanation of the Sūtras. However, it breaks at Sṅgārāghatta at Sūtra No. 185. MS No. 689 is in author's own handwriting while No. 690 is an incomplete copy prepared by some one else. Kṛṣṇavadhūta belonged to Hospet in Bellary District. His grandson Muddukṛṣṇācārya has a collection of his available works and a biographical Sanskrit poem. (See Karnatak University Journal 1957, Introduction to Advaitanavanīta for more particulars).
